ART Pricing Models

ART is ready to work with you in any kind of pricing solution that you may prefer and is reasonable.

Fixed pricing structure reflects the total cost for the project and ART guarantees the delivery of your solution at this cost in the time frame agreed upon. ART goes through a thorough and firm understanding of the web project requirements and seeks your approval for the system requirements analysis. The pricing is then quoted against that analysis based on how much overall effort, resources, and time must be put on developing the solution. This web design pricing model guarantees on-time, on-budget delivery of web design and development projects.

In general, half of the total payment is due near the beginning of the project or after we show you some progress. For larger projects, the cost is divided into more than two parts.

Most projects need independent requirements analysis before we can give you a quote on cost and time estimate. You can request Free web design solution Quote from us.

Hourly pricing web solution:

Hourly web design pricing reflects the cost per-hour for each of the resources assigned to develop a customer's solution. Customers pay costs as they are incurred during the life of the web design project..

In general, ART bills graphics and web design time at US$12.00 per hour, programming time at US$14.00 per hour, System analysis and project coordination at US$16.00 per hour and other work time at US$14.00 per hour. This is for the time actually spent working on the project.

Web development Service Milestone

Client can choose this option for large and long lasting projects where the entire project is broken down into phases. Payment schedules are defined on time (ex. monthly) or after each phase are accomplished and demonstrated. This method reinforces project progress monitoring and reduces risks.
